Investment Goal

Royce International Premier Fund's investment goal is long-term growth of capital.

Fees and Expenses of the Fund

The following table presents the fees and expenses that you may pay if you buy and hold shares of the Fund.

Shareholder Fees (fees paid directly from your investment)

	CONSULTANT CLASS	R CLASS
Maximum sales charge (load) imposed on purchases	0.00%	0.00%
Maximum deferred sales charge on purchases held for less than 365 days	1.00%	0.00%
Maximum sales charge (load) imposed on reinvested dividends	0.00%	0.00%

Annual Fund Operating Expenses (expenses that you pay each year as a percentage of the value of your investment)

Management fees	1.00%	1.00%
Distribution (12b-1) fees	1.00%	0.50%
Other expenses	0.70%	26.86%
Total annual Fund operating expenses	2.70%	28.36%
Fee waivers and/or expense reimbursements	-0.51%	-26.62%
Total annual Fund operating expenses after fee waivers and/or expense reimbursements	2.19%	1.74%

Royce has contractually agreed, without right of termination, to waive fees and/or reimburse expenses to the extent necessary to maintain the Consultant and R Classes' net annual operating expenses (excluding brokerage commissions, taxes, interest, litigation expenses, acquired fund fees and expenses, and other expenses not borne in the ordinary course of business) at or below 2.19% and 1.74%, respectively, through April 30, 2018 and at or below 1.99% through April 30, 2027 for the R Class.

Example

This example is intended to help you compare the cost of investing in the Fund with the cost of investing in other mutual funds.

The example assumes that you invest $10,000 in the Fund for the time periods indicated and then redeem all of your shares at the end of those periods. The example also assumes that your investment has a 5% return each year and that the Fund's total operating expenses (net of fee waivers and/or expense reimbursements for the periods noted above) remain the same. Although your actual costs may be higher or lower, based on the assumptions your costs would be:

	CONSULTANT CLASS	R CLASS
1 Year	$222	$177
3 Years	$790	$600
5 Years	$1,385	$1,050
10 Years	$2,994	$2,297

Portfolio Turnover

The Fund pays transaction costs, such as commissions, when it buys and sells securities (or "turns over" its portfolio). A higher portfolio turnover rate may indicate higher transaction costs and may result in higher taxes when Fund shares are held in a taxable account. These costs, which are not reflected in annual fund operating expenses or in the example, affect the Fund's performance. During the fiscal year ended December 31, 2016, the Fund's portfolio turnover rate was 67% of the average value of its portfolio.

Royce International Premier Fund

Principal Investment Strategy

Royce & Associates, LP (“Royce”), the Fund’s investment adviser, invests the Fund’s assets in a limited number (generally less than 100) of equity securities of small-cap companies issued by non-U.S. (“international”) companies headquartered outside of the United States. Royce looks for companies trading below its estimate of their current worth that it considers “premier”—those that have strong balance sheets, other business strengths, and/or strong business prospects. In addition, Royce considers companies with the potential for improvement in cash flow levels and internal rates of return.

Normally, the Fund invests at least 80% of its net assets in equity securities of such premier companies. At least 65% of these securities will be issued by companies with stock market capitalizations up to $3 billion at the time of investment. Under normal market circumstances, at least 65% of the Fund’s net assets will be invested in equity securities of international companies headquartered in at least three different countries. From time to time, a substantial portion of the Fund’s assets may be invested in companies that are headquartered in a single country. Although there are no geographic limits on the Fund’s investments, no more than 35% of the Fund’s net assets may be invested in securities of companies headquartered in “developing countries,” also known as emerging markets. Generally, developing countries, sometimes also referred to as emerging market countries, include every country in the world other than the United States, Canada, Japan, Australia, New Zealand, Hong Kong, Singapore, South Korea, Taiwan, Bermuda, and Western European countries (as defined in the Fund’s Statement of Additional Information). The Fund does not expect to purchase or sell foreign currencies to hedge against declines in the U.S. dollar or to lock in the value of any foreign securities that it purchases.

In selecting securities for the Fund, Royce uses a bottom-up, value approach. Royce primarily focuses on company-specific criteria rather than on political, economic, or other country-specific factors. The Fund may sell securities to, among other things, secure gains, limit losses, redeploy assets into what Royce deems to be more appropriate opportunities, and/or manage cash levels in the Fund’s portfolio.

Primary Risks for Fund Investors

As with any mutual fund that invests in common stocks, Royce International Premier Fund is subject to market risk—the possibility that common stock prices will decline over short or extended periods of time. As a result, the value of your investment in the Fund will fluctuate, sometimes sharply and unpredictably, and you could lose money over short or long periods of time.

In addition to general market risk, securities of international companies may be subject to different risks than investments in U.S. securities, including adverse political, social, economic, or other developments that are unique to a particular country or region. Prices of international securities in particular countries or regions may, at times, move in a different direction and/or be more volatile than those of U.S. securities.

The Fund’s investments are usually denominated in or tied to the currencies of the countries in which they are primarily traded. Because the Fund does not intend to hedge its foreign currency exposure, the U.S. dollar value of the Fund’s investments may be harmed by declines in the value of foreign currencies in relation to the U.S. dollar. This may occur even if the value of the investment in the currency’s home country has not declined. These risk factors may affect the prices of international securities issued by companies headquartered in developing countries more than those headquartered in developed countries. For example, many developing countries have in the past experienced high rates of inflation or sharply devalued their currencies against the U.S. dollar, thereby causing the value of investments in companies located in those countries to decline. Transaction costs are often higher in developing countries, and there may be delays in settlement procedures. To the extent that the Fund’s investments in the securities of international companies consists of non-U.S. headquartered companies that trade on a U.S. exchange, some or all of the above-stated risks of investing in international companies may not apply.

The prices of small-cap securities are generally more volatile than those of larger-cap securities. In addition, because small-cap securities tend to have significantly lower trading volumes than larger-cap securities, the Fund may have difficulty selling holdings or may only be able to sell holdings at prices substantially lower than what Royce believes they are worth. Therefore, the Fund may involve considerably more risk of loss and its returns may differ significantly from funds investing in larger-cap companies or other asset classes. The Fund’s investment in a limited number of issuers and its potential industry and sector overweights may also involve considerably more risk to investors than a more broadly diversified portfolio of small-cap securities because it may be more susceptible to any single corporate, economic, political, regulatory, or market event.

Royce’s estimate of a company’s current worth may prove to be inaccurate, or this estimate may not be recognized by other investors, which could lead to portfolio losses. Securities in the Fund’s portfolio may not increase as much as the market as a whole and some securities may continue to be undervalued for long periods of time.

Investments in the Fund are not bank deposits and are not insured or guaranteed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or any other government agency.

Performance

The following performance information provides an indication of the risks of investing in the Fund. Past performance does not indicate how the Fund will perform in the future. The Calendar Year Total Returns chart shows performance year by year since the Fund’s inception (Consultant Class used for illustrative purposes—returns differ by Class). The Annualized Total Returns table shows how the Fund’s average annual total returns for various periods compare with those of the Russell ex-U.S. Small Cap Index, the Fund’s benchmark index. The Consultant and R Classes commenced operations on February 26, 2016. Performance information prior to this date is for Service Class shares, not offered in this Prospectus. The returns differ only to the extent that the Classes have different expenses because all Classes invest in the same portfolio of securities. The Consultant and R Classes have higher distribution expenses than the Service Class. If Consultant or R Class's expenses had been reflected, total returns prior to February 26, 2016 would have been lower.

Royce International Premier Fund

Calendar Year Total Returns

Consultant Class (%)

During the period shown in the bar chart, the highest return for a calendar quarter was 14.77% (quarter ended 3/31/12) and the lowest return for a calendar quarter was -20.37% (quarter ended 9/30/11).

The table also presents the impact of taxes on the Fund's returns. (Consultant Class again used for illustrative purposes.) In calculating these figures, we assumed that the shareholder was in the highest federal income tax bracket in effect at the time of each distribution of income or capital gains. We did not consider the impact of state or local income taxes. Your after-tax returns depend on your tax situation, so they may differ from the returns shown. This information does not apply if your investment is in an individual retirement account (IRA), a 401(k) plan, or is otherwise tax deferred because such accounts are subject to income taxes only upon distribution. Current month-end performance information may be obtained at www.roycefunds.com or by calling Investor Services at (800) 221-4268.

Investment Adviser and Portfolio Management

Royce serves as investment adviser to the Fund. David A. Nadel is the lead portfolio manager, and Portfolio Manager Mark Rayner manages the Fund with him. Mr. Nadel has been the portfolio manager since the Fund's inception. Mr. Rayner became portfolio manager in 2016 and was previously assistant portfolio manager (2014-2015).

How to Purchase and Sell Fund Shares

The Fund's R Class Shares are generally offered only through certain broker-dealers to "Retirement Plans" with accounts held on the books of the Fund through omnibus account arrangements (either at the plan level or at the level of the financial intermediary).

Minimum initial investments for shares of the Fund's Consultant Class purchased directly from The Royce Fund:

ACCOUNT TYPE	MINIMUM
Regular Account	$2,000
IRA	$1,000
Automatic Investment or Direct Deposit Plan Accounts	$1,000
401(k) Accounts	None

The minimum for subsequent investments is $50, regardless of account type.

You may sell shares purchased directly from The Royce Funds at any time and make requests online, by telephone, and by mail. You may also purchase or sell Fund shares through a third party, such as a discount or full-service broker-dealer, bank, or other financial intermediary.

Tax Information

The Fund intends to make distributions that are expected to be taxable to you as ordinary income or capital gains unless your investment is in an individual retirement account (IRA), a 401(k) plan, or is otherwise tax deferred.

Financial Intermediary Compensation

If you purchase the Fund through a broker-dealer or other financial intermediary (such as a bank), the Fund and its related companies may pay the intermediary for the sale of Fund shares and related services. These payments may create a conflict of interest by influencing the broker-dealer or other intermediary and your salesperson to recommend the Fund over another investment. Ask your salesperson or visit your financial intermediary's website for more information.

Before you invest, please review the Fund's Statutory Prospectus and Statement of Additional Information dated May 1, 2017.
